By: John Miller | April 20, 2021

Washington - January 2021 set a new, unenviable climate change record, as the monthly average global concentration of carbon dioxide (CO₂) — a potent greenhouse gas (GHG) — crossed 415 parts per million (ppm).¹ Concentration levels of CO₂ are higher today than at any recorded point in the past 800,000 years.² To bend this GHG concentration arch back toward safe levels, real structural change in how emissions-intensive segments of the economy operate are needed now. Namely, the production and consumption of fossil fuels must decline.

By: Lauren Kashmanian | April 19, 2021

New York - This Earth Day, we celebrate the increasing global attention toward environmental stewardship and look for ways the investment community can promote sustainability. In the municipal bond market, investors can invest in projects that aim to provide a meaningful environmental benefit to municipalities and their constituents across the United States.
