Quarterly Core Bond Strategy Outlook

By: Vishal Khanduja, CFA | October 21, 2020

In this quarter's market update, Eaton Vance's Core Bond team points to expected increases in volatility throughout 2020 as short-term sentiment swings on new developments. Both monetary and fiscal policy will provide a level of support to fixed-income markets, but will also cause distortions, leading to both opportunities and the possibility for value traps.

Broad EM debt rally cools, but select opportunities remain

By: Emerging Markets Debt Team |

October 12, 2020

Boston - The third quarter saw the broad rally in emerging markets (EM) continue through July and August, albeit at a slower rate, followed by retreat in September. COVID-19 remains the macro factor dominating markets. Early in the quarter, the rally gained from signs of continued declines in the spread of the virus, along with improving growth and ongoing easy monetary and fiscal policy around the world. However, second pandemic waves and uncertainty surrounding the upcoming U.S. presidential election weighed on the latter part of the period.

Great Concentration intensifies at summer's end

By: Yana S. Barton, CFA | & Lewis R. Piantedosi | September 11, 2020

Boston - A few months back, we discussed alarming levels of concentration in the US equity markets and the uneven return participation of stocks after the market trough in mid-March. Many of these trends have accelerated since then —serving as a reminder of the market's growing fragility and the importance of diversification.

Great expectations: Insights as Q2 earnings season wraps up

By: Yana S. Barton, CFA | & Lewis R. Piantedosi | August 19, 2020

Boston - Second quarter earnings season is nearing completion, with most companies besting lowered earnings and revenue expectations. Against the backdrop of continued market strength, investor focus has shifted to next year's profitability and the reliability of current guestimates.
