Compensation and Benefits

Eaton Vance takes a holistic approach to employee rewards. We recognize that the compensation and benefits we provide, the training and development opportunities we offer, and the work experience of our employees are key to attracting, developing and retaining top talent and achieving high levels of performance excellence.

Our compensation programs are driven by three primary objectives: attracting a highly qualified and diverse workforce; retaining and motivating employees by recognizing and rewarding achievement, contribution and excellence; aligning the focus of employees, management and shareholders on long-term business and investment results. The principal elements of our compensation program are base salaries, performance-and-incentive-based cash awards, and stock-based compensation.

We offer a comprehensive range of employee benefits, including: medical, dental, and vision insurance, a profit-sharing and retirement savings plan, parental leave and adoption assistance, back-up child care services, flexible work arrangements, a commuter benefit plan, professional exam and tuition reimbursement, paid time off, wellness and employee assistance programs, an employee stock purchase plan and an array of voluntary supplemental benefits.

Diversity and Inclusion

Eaton Vance understands that diversity is central to our mission and core values. We believe that maintaining a diverse workforce and inclusive culture benefits our employees, clients, business partners and shareholders. Embedding diversity and inclusion into the culture of Eaton Vance requires making it a central element of our employee recruiting and engagement practices. We accomplish this by consistently: seeking to identify diverse candidates for consideration to fill open positions; investing to develop and retain employees who contribute to diversity; and training all employees to be receptive and responsive to diversity and inclusion issues, conversations and topics.

Our diversity and inclusion team works closely with managers across the Company to develop action plans specific to each group, then measuring and tracking key indicators to evaluate progress and identify gaps. We use anti-bias training to provide our managers with understanding and tools needed to address and mitigate bias in the workplace, and offer a number of online courses covering diversity and inclusion topics that are available to our employees to further enhance their understanding and awareness.

We further support diversity and inclusion across the Company through our sponsorship of employee resource groups, which serve as networks for work colleagues to leverage their experiences to connect with one another, learn and develop professionally, and promote diversity and inclusion. Four employee resource groups are currently active at Eaton Vance: PRIDE+ (lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and queer employees and their allies); EVOlve (young professionals); Mosaic (multicultural) and Women's Leadership Exchange.

Eaton Vance is equal opportunity employer committed to providing a workplace that is free of discrimination and harassment. Learn More
